VICAR DEFIANT AGAINST PAYING HIS COUNCIL TAX

A VICAR from Tottenham has been ordered to return to court later this year over his continual refusal to pay council tax.

Reverend Paul Nicolson says his refusal is in solidarity with the more than 22,000 people across the borough who face having to find an extra £125 on top of the initial bill.

That is the figure imposed by Haringey Council to cover the cost of taking council tax evaders to court – but Mr Nicolson, 82, says that charge is unfair, as it is being enforced on those struggling to pay their bills in the first place.

That is especially following the introduction of the bedroom tax in April 2013, with housing benefit being cut by between 14 and 25 per cent for any spare bedrooms in a council property.

Mr Nicolson says that is disproportionately high compared to the £70 charged by neighbouring Enfield Council for liability orders heard at Tottenham Magistrates' Court.

The latest round of Mr Nicholson's protracted battle, dating back to August last year, took place at the court in Lordship Lane last Wednesday when magistrates agreed to adjourn his liability order hearing until October 29.

His supporters gathered outside the court and he has also been given a date of October 7 for a one-hour High Court hearing of his application for judicial review of the magistrates' refusal to state their case.

He will be represented by Helen Mountfield QC, following Judge Helen Foskett's encouragement that he should get legal representation.

The defiant octogenarian says that he is ready to continue his fight for the "poorest residents of the borough", pointing out that 22,152 liability orders have been issued for 2013/14 – with the £125 figure remaining for 2014/15.

Mr Nicholson said: "The £125 costs are not a minor issue when they are authorised over 22,000 times by the Tottenham magistrates in 2013/14.

"Haringey Council is being enabled to collect over £2m and the bailiffs are being sent to enforce them against the poorest residents of the borough."

A Haringey Council spokesman said: "We have a statutory duty to collect council tax. The government's decision to abolish council tax benefit and instruct all local authorities to introduce a new council tax reduction scheme left the council facing a funding gap of almost £4million.

"Increasing council tax to cover the shortfall would have meant placing extra burden on thousands of hard-pressed local families."

Fugitive is arrested

A CONVICTED robber from Tottenham has been arrested after three weeks on the run.

Simon Rhodes-Brown, 37, had gone missing from Ford open prison on May 22.

Police confirmed that the fugitive was arrested early on Friday morning.

Rhodes-Brown, right, was jailed for seven years in September 2011 for attacking and robbing a garage owner in south London.

He and Ilyas Ismail, of Thornton Heath, south London, were convicted of attacking the man in South Norwood in March 2011 and tearing a Rolex watch worth £4,000 from his wrist. They were caught within 15 minutes and sentenced to a total of 12-and-a-half years at Croydon Crown Court later that year.

Rhodes-Brown's arrest came hot on the heels of the revelation that there are currently 88 prisoners on the run from the open prison in West Sussex – some of whom have been missing for several years.

Bruce makes a tree-mendous, amazing, fantastic gesture

AN AUTISM sufferer handed out 1,000 trees which he had been growing in his back garden during a special event on Sunday.

Bruce Yang, 20, had been nurturing the trees for several months at his home in Harringay, after spending last summer and autumn gathering seeds and acorns from which to grow them.

Last weekend he handed them out at Sheridan Hall, on the Scout Park in Gordon Road, Bounds Green, to members of the public to plant in spaces that need trees.

Bruce's one-man bid to re-forest the planet saw him grow a number of different types of trees, including crab apple, cherry blossom and oak.

Duo receive Birthday Honours

SHARON Grant, the widow of former Tottenham MP Bernie Grant, has received an OBE in the Queen's Birthday Honours list.

Ms Grant, who has lived in Haringey for more than 30 years, was honoured for her services to the community and the arts.

The former Haringey councillor, right, is trustee of the Bernie Grant Arts Centre, in Town Hall Approach, Tottenham, as well as a number of other charities.

The arts centre was set up in memory of Mr Grant, who was Tottenham MP for more than 13 years before his death from a heart attack in April 2000.

Also honoured is Reverend John Wood, 56, vicar of St Ann's Church, in South Grove, South Tottenham, who has been made an MBE for his services to the community in Tottenham.

The long-serving vicar, who has been at St Ann's since 1994, has been recognised for the outreach projects the church runs in the borough, as well as helping to rebuild community relations following the 2011 riots in the area.

Mr Wood and his team also organise youth groups on five estates, run a counselling project in 31 schools in the borough and provide chaplaincy services to the police.

Tory's top brass test out plans for £400million housing boost

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE borough is on the brink of benefiting from a scheme that will see red tape slashed across the capital to fast-track the building of thousands of homes.

Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne and Mayor of London Boris Johnson visited the Meridian Water site, near Angel Road, Edmonton, and the River Lee, on Friday morning to unveil the plans.

The initiative will mean local authorities in London can bid for a share of a £400million pot earmarked for the scheme, to be split across 20 new "housing zones", which will have special powers to fast-track planning applications – last November the mayor's housing strategy set out plans for ten such zones.

In theory, the investment will pave the way for the speedy construction of 50,000 homes in the capital.

Meridian Water is one of five test zones the mayor has been examining. The development will see 5,000 homes built on the former gas field, as well as a school and other community facilities.

However, the site is still dominated by gas silos and overlooked by a chain of electricity pylons.

"The money that the Chancellor is giving to London will enable us to remediate sites like this," Mr Johnson told the Advertiser.

On the ground: Boris Johnson and George Osborne at the Meridian Water site in Edmonton last week

ANNE-MARE SANDERSON

"It will help us with the transport infrastructure and then we will be able to have a broad consent for the number of homes which will be built there."

He added: "This is a way of getting things going that didn't even get started during the real boom times."

However, with fears London is facing another housing bubble, Mr Osborne denied that focusing on boosting private ownership rather than increasing social housing would only exacerbate an already over-inflated house price boom.

He insisted: "We want to have more homes for more families and that's the way you make sure the housing bubble doesn't get overheated."

"That is the way you make sure families in London can afford to not only own their homes, if they want to, but rent their home if they want to."

"This site has been derelict for 20 years and we need to make sure that it is built on."

The Chancellor added that he had talked with officers from Enfield Council and had been assured that 40 per cent of the site would be set aside for social housing.

Enfield Council leader Doug Taylor added: "We are driving forward the £1.5billion regeneration of Meridian Water and we have put our money where our mouth is by investing £60m to provide the homes and quality employment space that Londoners need."

On the mend: Sam Shannan at home with his sister Charley Williams after the accident when he tried to climb the fence at the ground in Waltham Abbey, right

Sam scores an own goal after finger is ripped off

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A GOALIE has been forced to put any World Cup plans on ice for the next month after almost losing his finger while trying to have a kickaround.

Two days after completing a degree in video game programming at Buckinghamshire New University, in High Wycombe, 22-year-old Sam Shannan, of Faints Close, Cheshunt, and friends decided to have a kickabout on new pitches in Town Mead, Waltham Abbey.

Although they had played on the pitches before, without any problems, when they arrived, the gates were locked – but there were people playing on the other side.

“We thought they must have climbed over the fence, we decided to pop over,” he told the Advertiser. He scaled the fence without any problems and when he got to the top, he even joked to his friends: “It’s not so bad” before leaping to the ground.

“I didn’t realise at first what had happened,” said Sam. “Then I looked up at my stepbrother’s face and he was staring at the fence.”

Although he had thought he had just banged his finger, Sam then realised that, in fact, the ring on the middle finger of his right hand had caught on one of the spikes and had been torn away when he jumped from the fence.

Unable to move due to shock, Sam could not scale the fence and even his stepbrother was too shaken to climb up and retrieve the finger.

But then a mysterious hero stepped into the breach to save his goalkeeping career.

“I don’t know the boy who got it back, but I said: ‘Could someone please just go up and get my finger back and this boy just jumped up and got it and put it in a bag for me,’” a grateful Sam said.

The group rang for an ambulance, but were told that as Sam’s injury was not life-threatening they would not be able to give them an estimate of when an ambulance could respond.

Sam’s stepbrother drove him to Princess Alexandra Hospital, in Harlow, Essex, but when they arrived, they faced more delays as they were told they would have to go to specialist plastic surgery hospital Broomfield Hospital, in Chelmsford, Essex. “The staff at both hospitals were fantastic, but because it had been so long since the accident by the time I got to Broomfield I was a bit concerned about my finger,” Sam added.

Within 20 minutes of arriving, he was swept into the operating theatre.

“When I was in hospital, it wasn’t too bad because I had morphine and painkillers – but now the nerves in my finger are going mental. I can’t feel the finger, but the doctors did say it would take three months for it to get fully back to normal.”

Car-nage as Ferrari crashes

THESE are the dramatic images taken after a sports car mounted a kerb and damaged a house and four other vehicles.

The red Ferrari left the road in The Grangeway, Winchmore Hill, at 4.40pm on Friday and careered on to the pavement, knocking down a pillar outside a house and crashing into four parked cars – losing two wheels in the process.

Police and paramedics were called to the scene, but no one was hurt and the police made no arrests as the incident was a “damage only accident”.

Laura Sorrell, who works part time at a store in The Grangeway, took these photographs after realising no one was hurt.

She told the Advertiser: “I’ve not stopped talking about it since years ago I witnessed a similar thing where someone died. I thought ‘I can’t bear to see that again’.

“I can’t believe that there was not someone that hot afternoon just standing around chatting. There was a girl just stepping out of the dry cleaners, but she turned around to have another conversation.

“When I first stepped outside, the car was smoking – the driver managed to squeeze out of an open window.

“When I looked at the photos, I thought: ‘These are quite dramatic’, so I posted them on Facebook. I wouldn’t have done that if someone had been hurt.”

Going nowhere: This Ferrari lost two wheels after it careered on to a pavement in The Grangeway, Winchmore Hill, and smashed into four cars, as well as knocking down a pillar outside a house, inset

Estate hits the high point of housing development

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE latest milestone for a new housing development in Edmonton was reached this week with a ceremony to mark the completion of works at its highest point.

Councillors were joined by Edmonton MP Andy Love on Monday to mark the "topping out" of Enfield Council's Highmead Estate regeneration project in Fore Street.

The 118-home development includes an eight-storey block of flats and 22 terraced houses, 47 properties will be at affordable and intermediate rents, while 71 homes will be for sale on the private market.

The site, which is being developed by Countryside Properties and Newlon Housing Trust in partnership with the council, will also provide space for a health centre and more than 1,000 square metres of commercial and retail space, which the authority hopes will attract new jobs and investment into the neighbourhood.

Ahmet Oyken, cabinet member for housing, said the development was coming up to speed "very quickly".

"It is being built to a very high standard," he said. "This project is an excellent example of the collaboration between Countryside, Newlon and the council."

Crushers and diggers completed the demolition of the 50-year-old estate in May last year. The estate was bulldozed along with the accompanying parade of shops and maisonettes.

A new council-owned community centre will also be built as part of the scheme, while Countryside takes over ownership of the land as part of the deal with the authority.

Mr Love added: "In less than a year from now there will be a whole range of affordable and family homes available to local people, as well as a health centre and retail units, providing a real boost to the area."

The developer was also chosen last year to regenerate the Alma Estate, in Ponders End, where 717 homes will be replaced with 800 new, council-owned private and shared ownership homes, which will also be owned by Newlon Housing Trust.

And in March work started at the Ladderswood Estate, in New Southgate. It is a joint venture between developer Mulalley and housing association One Housing Group and is creating more than 500 new homes.

The new Highmead Estate is expected to be completed in July next year.

Art show celebrates new-look HIV centre

NORTH Middlesex University Hospital marked the opening of its refurbished HIV treatment centre with a showcase of contemporary art.

Edmonton MP Andy Love and Tottenham MP David Lammy joined medical staff at the hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, on Friday at the new Alexander Pringle Centre, which will provide diagnosis, treatment and support for patients living with the Human Immunodeficiency Virus.

The unit, which will be able to treat 1,200 patients a year, is named after a retired consultant who founded the North Mid HIV unit in the 1990s.

Dr Achim Schwenk, clinical director for specialist medicine, said: "Living with HIV can be stressful. Too many people still feel they are alone with this disease because of the great stigma attached wrongly to HIV."

"This new centre, with its friendly and competent staff, and with its artwork, provides a supportive environment for all people living with HIV. We're very grateful to the artists who have contributed their inspirational work."

The hospital worked with artists to create a collection of modern art to decorate the walls of the new centre.

With advice from arts consultant Bea de Sousa and funding from the Arts Council, the centre now boasts a collection of black and white photographs which chronicle the history of HIV and the campaigners who fought for greater public awareness of the disease when it emerged in the early 1980s.

Mr Love added: "We all remember the terrible years when Aids was first discovered, but fortunately times have moved on. One of the key issues today is the people who don't know about HIV and don't realise they may have it. People should have a blood test."

MPs debating tougher knife crime sentences

Second conviction could mean six-month jail term

MEMBERS of Parliament were last night set to vote on a new law which will see mandatory jail terms imposed on any adults convicted of possessing a knife for a second time.

The law, proposed by Enfield North MP Nick de Bois in an amendment to the Criminal Courts and Justice Bill, was debated by politicians in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

Mr de Bois and Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes, who seconded the amendment, are in favour of toughening up the sentencing regime.

The Conservative MPs have been campaigning for a mandatory six-month jail term for adults convicted of possessing a knife for a second time.

A second clause will introduce a four-month detention and training order for 16 to 18-year-olds convicted for a second offence.

Mr de Bois told the House: "We need to send out a clear and unequivocal message about the consequences of carrying a knife, particularly to those children who don't see it as a serious offence and who are on a journey to destruction."

The vote gave rise to a curious situation for the coalition government as Liberal Democrat MPs were expected to vote against the new law, leading Conservative ministers to say they would abstain from the vote because there was no coalition agreement, even though they backed the law. Labour MPs were expected to vote in favour.

Edmonton MP Andy Love told the Advertiser yesterday: "I believe we need to send out the strongest possible signal that carrying a knife is completely unacceptable."

"But I don't believe it is the only step we must take – it would be wrong to think that this is the only way to solve the problem."

If passed, the new law follows what became known as Enfield's Law in December 2012, when Mr de Bois put forward new legislation which meant anyone aged 16 or above convicted of using a knife to threaten someone would receive a mandatory six-month prison sentence.

It became law after the bid was endorsed by anti-knife crime campaigners, charities and backbench MPs.

Yesterday's vote took place after the Advertiser had gone to press.

Man jailed for his role in high-end escort ring

A PALMERS Green man has been jailed for his part in a criminal gang which ran escort services.

Michael Poole, 28, of Hazelwood Lane, was found guilty following a trial at Southwark Crown Court.

And on Tuesday last week he was jailed for a year after being found guilty of conspiracy to control prostitution for gain.

Poole was part of an organised crime gang which ran high-end escort sites based in the Kensington and Chelsea area of west London.

Last week six others were given prison sentences for offences including trafficking a woman for sexual exploitation and conspiracy to control prostitution.

Two Russian nationals, Tatiana Shmyrova, 45, of Brompton Park Crescent, West Brompton, and Natalia Cannon, 34, of Harbour Reach, The Boulevard, Fulham were jailed for eight and six years respectively after being found guilty alongside Poole on June 6.

William Cannon, 52, Rochester Row, Westminster, was handed an eight-month jail term, suspended for two years, and ordered to carry out 200 hours of unpaid work, after being convicted on the same date.

Three others also pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing to control prostitution for gain.

These were Irina Bepalova, 32, of Brompton Park Crescent, West Brompton, who was sentenced to eight months behind bars. Richard Gorecki, 37, from Caspian Walk, Beckton, was jailed for two years and Jerzy Molczun, 26, of Taywood Road, Northolt who was sentenced to a year imprisonment.

Detective Chief Inspector Mick Forteach said: "These convictions show the ongoing commitment from the Met's trafficking and kidnap unit to work tirelessly to support victims of trafficking in all its forms."

Police appealing for help to find missing schoolgirl, 15

POLICE are searching for a teenage girl who went missing in the borough two weeks ago.

Charlotte Dempsey-Halliday, 15, from Romford, Essex, was last seen in Enfield at 8.30am on June 6.

The missing teenager is described as white, 5ft 4ins tall, of medium build, with shoulder-length brown curly hair.

Charlotte has a nose and lower lip piercing. At the time of her disappearance she was wearing dark blue jeans and a dark top.

She is known to spend time in the Albany Park area.

Officers are increasingly concerned for her well-being and have urged anyone with information on her whereabouts to call police on 101 or Missing People on 116000.

New mayor's secret to sweetening councillors

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ALI Bakir tried to set a mood of sweetness and light as he was named the new mayor of Enfield last week by welcoming councillors with sweets and jokes.

Apologising for how full the chamber was at the Civic Centre last Wednesday evening, with the public gallery packed with interested international press teams and an overflow room with live streaming of proceedings filled with some of the 200 invited guests, Mr Bakir joked: "I am sorry – but the O2 was sold out."

He then drew councillors' attention to the goody bags of Turkish delight he had left for them, adding that he hoped the treats would "sweeten" the sometimes bitter disputes in the chamber.

He announced that his consort will be his 18-year-old son Berdan Bakir and the deputy mayor will be fellow Upper Edmonton ward councillor Patricia Ekechi, whose daughter will act as her consort.

Last week's meeting was also the first time the new leader of the Tory group Terry Neville had a chance to stretch his legs as leader of the opposition.

Flanked by the new Tory whip Elaine Hayward, and deputy leader Joanne Laban, Mr Neville kicked off the first full council meeting of the new term by calling for the vote on the changes to democracy in the council to be deferred until the next meeting.

Handing over: Outgoing Enfield mayor Chaudhury Anwar prepares to pass the chain of office to his successor Ali Bakir

"This is a very detailed report," he said of the document that details axing each of the individual scrutiny committees in favour of one overarching overview and scrutiny committee.

"It would serve everybody who is interested in this matter if we deferred it for a period to the next council meeting."

The Conservatives also objected to the report's recommendation to appoint three associate cabinet members, who will promote ward engagement in three separate areas of the borough.

They argue that the areas correspond to the three parliamentary constituencies and that having Labour's prospective parliamentary candidate for Enfield Southgate Bambos Charalambous representing the west of Enfield as an associate cabinet member will mean he has a free pass for electioneering in the run-up to next year's general election.

Tory Town ward councillor Mike Rye bluntly labelled it "gerrymandering".

But deputy council leader Achilles Georgiou said the purpose of the new roles was to "get councillors closer to local residents", adding: "We are changing the area forums so that we can get closer to our residents and the ACMs are a very important part of doing that."

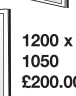

The Labour councillors voted unanimously not to defer the debate and the report's recommendations were passed before the councillors headed into the conference room for wine and a buffet.

Leftside

If you don't understand what's been going on at schools in Birmingham, you must have been reading the newspapers.

The Telegraph prints earnest reports about Islamist plots, while the Guardian informs us that the Trojan Horse affair is all a hoax. Who do you believe?

Teachers, at any rate, will not be surprised to read that Ofsted inspectors can give a school top marks first time round, then put the same school into special measures a couple of months later.

Stories about terrorist lessons for infants are laughable.

But religious control of education, encouraged as it is by the chaos of faith schools, trust schools, academies etc, is a genuine worry.

In our secular culture, religion is a question of personal faith, a private, individual matter, "a sort of current, like electricity", in the immortal words of Not The Nine O'Clock News.

Within religious cultures, however, most people – Christians as well as Muslims – see their religion as a collective, social commitment.

A religious community disciplines and supports its members. It strengthens family bonds, offering protection and guidance to the young. It is well placed to take control of schools.

The Conservatives want schools to inculcate British values. But the British are not a religious community. We haven't been one for generations – as early as 1851, census returns showed that a majority of the population did not attend church services.

As for other expressions of human solidarity, such as trade unionism and socialism – we have turned our backs on those, too...for the time being.

Don't just toe the party line

SO, we have another four years of a Labour council.

The truth is, these are not elections on the performance of our council, but a poll of what our politicians at Westminster want to know – and the electorate go along with this reasoning.

If people took more interest in how our authority performed, there would be a good chance we would have a council that acted in our interests, instead of people's minds being diverted to the performance of central government.

Some points about our Labour council should be considered:

This administration has a record of only listening to taxpayers when it suits it, as well as not consulting the relevant people about controversial issues such as replacing paving stones with Tarmac, cutting back trees so they no longer have any greenery, and putting cycle paths through parks, which most people oppose.

Is this really a council that deserves another term?

All of us should vote for councillors who perform well, irrespective of what party they belong to, in order that the council acts responsibly.

Martin Langer
Ulleswater Road, Southgate

□ IF Chase ward councillor Nick Dines wants to save money (Advertiser, June 11), he could always submit his resignation along with his other Conservative colleagues.

Plans to cut councillor numbers by a third was a Tory proposal and was incorporated in their election manifesto.

Last month the people of Enfield passed their judgement and overwhelmingly rejected the prospect of a Conservative-led authority. Before the Tories in Enfield talk about cuts, perhaps they should speak to ordinary folk who have been hurt by four years of cuts to benefits and essential services thanks to this current Conservative-led coalition government.

I have spoken to hundreds of people through my ward surgeries and on the doorstep regarding real bread and butter issues, especially the rise of the cost of living and youth unemployment.

As for being gracious on behalf of the Labour Party, we would like to extend our congratulations to Terry Neville in replacing Michael Lavender as the Conservative group leader.

Indeed, congratulations, too, to our good Enfield Council Labour leader Doug Taylor.

George Savva
Haselbury ward councillor

□ NICK Dines is right to argue that Labour members should not be so arrogant as to dismiss out of hand the idea to cut the number of councillors at the civic centre.

If this new administration is even going to be cutting just one member of staff, then I find it unbelievable that any Labour councillor can be so arrogant as to say they are untouchable – yet crucial staff are not.

So much for being the party of the people! Do as I say, not as I do, would appear more appropriate.

While I don't agree with the Conservatives on everything, they are right to call for a cut in the cost of politics in Enfield if the council ever starts laying people off.

Reduce speed limit to 20mph

AS the lead petitioner in the successful campaign for traffic calming in Hoppers Road, Winchmore Hill, I would like to thank those who voted for myself and my two colleagues in the Green Party, Alison Phillips and Bill Linton, at the recent elections.

It would be interesting to know how many of our Green votes were due to that campaign as most people to whom I spoke to in that road, of all political persuasions, were pleased with the reduced speed limit.

I do think that this was a triumph for commonsense by the residents themselves, over those who had breathed fire and brimstone at the mere thought of limiting the speed of their vehicles.

It seems a pity the council is, it tells me, unlikely to ask residents there for feedback on the new system.

However, we are promised that residents in the roads leading to Hoppers Road will shortly be consulted about their views on the extension of the speed limit to the rest of this area – as the Greens have always wanted.

Indeed, we believe that a default 20mph throughout most of the borough would ensure a happier and safer environment for all areas

Marching to appease my anger

WHY am I going on the No More Austerity demo in London on Saturday? Because I'm angry, that's why.

Earlier this month, the country united to pay tribute to the heroism of our D-Day service personnel and back-up people in turning the war in our favour.

Against a national deficit far higher than now, our grandparents then built a national health service, public services and a welfare state to protect the worst-off and those who needed help.

Why am I angry? Because 70 years later we have a government systematically destroying support for the most vulnerable, starving the NHS of funding and privatising chunks of it; selling off the Royal Mail and with it the guarantee of a national service delivering post everywhere; stigmatising claimants entitled to disability and other benefits as scroungers – the list goes on.

If you share my anger, join comedian Russell Brand, the Enfield Alliance Against the Cuts and many, many more outside the BBC headquarters in Portland Place, central London, at 1pm on Saturday, for the Demand the Alternative march to parliament and free festival.

Reverse the cuts, invest in people and a living wage, and tax the rich. That would be a good start.

Chris Kaufman, chairman
Enfield Alliance Against the Cuts

Cycling will never outweigh the benefits of car ownership

RE: Roger Kingsnorth's letter "Cycling offers financial and health benefits" (Advertiser, June 7).

I accept that cycling has a health benefit for fit young people and offers financial benefits, too – but these are not sufficient to wean people away from owning a car.

The reasons are obvious: Discomfort on a bike in bad weather versus no discomfort in a car; a bike is a one-passenger vehicle whereas a car is not; more items can be carried in a car than on a bike.

When the bicycle was invented, apart from the horse, walking was the main means of travel. Bikes quickly became popular because they enabled quicker movement and reduced the drudgery of walking.

Likewise, the car became more popular than the bike because of extra benefits.

Mr Kingsnorth says we are 30-40 years behind providing good cycling infrastructure, but it was unnecessary because the bicycle was in decline, in favour of the car.

There was a greater need to improve infrastructure to keep up with car ownership, but this did not happen and now we have road congestion and poor air quality.

What improvements does Mr Kingsnorth want for Enfield? We are unlikely to get extensive redesigns if it involves demolishing buildings.

I welcome safety improvements at roundabouts and busy road junctions.

Cycle lanes have been proposed, but will their width be sufficient to cater for an upsurge in cycling?

I doubt cyclists will be patient enough to queue behind one another in a crowded bike lane.

Mr Kingsnorth's statistics are impressive, but estimates need to be proved by an upsurge in cycling.

Fears for missing dementia sufferer

POLICE in Waltham Forest are growing increasingly concerned for the welfare of a missing 78-year-old woman.

Lurline Harris was last seen at 4.15pm on Friday at her home address in Connington Crescent, Chingford.

The 78-year-old has dementia and has wandered off on three previous occasions, the most recent being in September 2013 when she was found in Chichester, West Sussex, by police.

She has also previously been found in Enfield Town and Walthamstow Market.

She is described as black, 5ft 4in, of slim build, with grey hair in a ponytail. She is believed to have gone out without a jacket, keys or any money.

She was last seen to be wearing a light blue jumper, a white blouse with a bow at the neckline, and a beige skirt that goes below her knees which has buttons running down the front of it.

It is understood that she has a black handbag in her possession which contains the details of her son and a freedom pass registered to her.

Lurline is not believed to be going to places of any relevance, but merely getting on a bus or train to a destination and continuing to travel in this way until she is found by police or a member of public.

Officers are concerned for her wellbeing and would urge anyone with information on her whereabouts to call police on 101 or Missing People on 116000 quoting reference 14MIS020453.

Man is robbed in alleyway

POLICE are investigating after a man was robbed by two others in the early hours of Saturday.

Officers were called to Hunters Way, at the junction with Lavender Hill just after 1.30am following a report of a 25-year-old man being robbed in a nearby alleyway.

Police said the victim was set upon from behind by two men who forced him to the ground and stole his wallet from his pocket.

The man was not seriously injured during the incident.

The two suspects are said to be aged between 20 and 25 years old and around 5ft 10in tall.

One was wearing a dark puffer-style sleeveless jacket.

Police are appealing for witnesses, and anyone with information should call Enfield CID on 020 8345 4469 or the police non-emergency line on 101 quoting CRIS 5212990/14.

Alternatively, call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Winners: Lisa Turner, Ameer Patel and Doug Lawrence with salon owner Tas Panteli, centre

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

THE winners of the Face of Enfield competition returned to the salon where all the magic took place on Monday night to collect their prizes.

The competition, run by this newspaper in conjunction with Pure Hair and Beauty, in Windmill Hill, Enfield, and Pearsons department store, in Church Street, Enfield Town, came to its conclusion this week as the winners received framed photographs, vouchers and goodies.

Salon owner Tas Panteli told them: "The reason I wanted to do this was because a lot of the images we are given to use have been airbrushed and you look at the hair and think, 'can we get that colour?' But we can't because it's been altered."

"So we wanted images of local people whose hair we've done that we can use on our website and cards. From our point of view, it's been great."

Audiologist Ameer Patel, 28, of Southbury Road, Enfield, was named the overall winner.

Ameer, who entered the classic category, told the Advertiser: "I shy away from anything like this. I only entered because I have a lot of selfies on my phone that I send to my friends who have left the area on WhatsApp, so it was easy to enter."

Doug Lawrence's girlfriend Michaela Eley, who entered him into the men's category, said: "I thought he had the right look. It was this which attracted me to him eight years ago."

Doug, 30, of Derby Road, Ponders End, said: "I enjoyed the makeover day. Tas is a really good hairdresser. He makes you feel welcome and comfortable. It was a bit of a shock, I didn't think I would win, but this is the first and last competition like this I'll enter."

Funky category winner Lisa Turner, 29, of Kimberley Gardens, Enfield, added: "When it was suggested, I thought it wouldn't go anywhere. It was nice to have something different. I loved the eyelashes because it was something I would never do myself."

GET A LITTLE LIFT IN YOUR LIFE

STAY in the home you love – install a stairlift to access the rooms upstairs.

Brilliant! That's the verdict from one of Churchill's HomeCare's® satisfied customers.

Derek Camp, 66, who has a serious illness, had one of the firm's stairlifts installed in the home he shares with wife Sue.

"I can get in a lot of pain when using the stairs, so we decided to get the stairlift now, rather than wait until it became an absolute necessity," he said.

"Ever since its installation, I haven't walked up the stairs once. It's brilliant."

Mr Camp said they chose Churchill's over other firms because the tracking it uses can be fitted to the stairs and not on the wall, which suited their property.

"We like the special Touchclean® surface. Anything that cuts down my wife's work is a bonus."

"I also like the fact that Churchill's Homecare will buy back the stairlift. Eventually, something is going to happen to me and I don't want my wife to have the equipment there for months, not knowing what to do with it.

One phone call and they'll collect it, and the house can go back to some kind of normality."

Under Churchill's guaranteed buyback scheme you can receive up to 50% (subject to terms and conditions) and depending on how long you have had your Churchill's Homecare bespoke stairlift.

Next-day installation is available nationwide.

Fuel bills to fall by up to £400

HUNDREDS of the borough's poorest families could see up to £400 wiped off their energy bills as part of a deal between Enfield Council and British Gas that was signed off yesterday.

Six council-owned housing blocks – four in Exeter Road, Ponders End, and two on the Beaconsfield Estate, in Kettering Road, Enfield Lock – will benefit from energy efficiency measures including cavity wall insulation, replacement windows and roof insulation as part of the agreement.

Ahmet Oyken, cabinet member for housing, said the improvements would save residents up to £400 a year – but at no cost to the council.

British Gas is using its Energy Company Obligation, under which large suppliers have to deliver energy efficiency measures to customers who live in fuel poverty, to fund the scheme.

Mr Oyken said: "I feel extremely happy as this will lead to a much-needed refurbishment of these housing blocks.

"I want to thank staff who worked hard to get this done. British Gas could have walked away after the government reduced the obligation, but we managed to get a fantastic deal."

The council will carry out structural repairs and remove asbestos where necessary in each of the blocks. The agreement comes a year after the launch of a £3million pilot scheme with British Gas at Scott House, a local authority tower block with 101 flats, in Woolmer Road, Edmonton, where the same improvements have been made and an oil-powered boiler has been replaced by a more energy efficient gas boiler.

Winning design:

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Fashion student's dress impresses

By Paige Caldeira

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A FASHION student will put himself in the shop window when his winning dress design goes on display at John Lewis later this year.

Luke Hards, of Durants Road, Ponders End, will see his work displayed at the store in Brent Cross shopping centre in August.

The 23-year-old was one of a group of fashion students from Barnet and Southgate College set a challenge by the department store to design a dress to celebrate its 150th anniversary.

His dress was judged the winner by a panel of fashion designers, tutors and John Lewis' fashions operations manager.

Luke said: "I'm over the moon. It's an opportunity of a lifetime. I didn't believe it at first - I was so shocked. I didn't think I'd win."

The students from the college, in Wood Street, High Barnet, had to create a design incorporating influences from John Lewis' Heritage collection, while also demonstrating innovative fashion from the 21st century.

viewed the textile collection archive, which dates back more than 200 years, for inspiration.

Amanda Timothy, John Lewis' community liaison co-ordinator, said: "It has been fantastic to see the students develop their ideas through this competition and how they have each taken inspiration from the collection to create a modern-day dress."

As well as visiting the centre, Luke analysed pictures, textiles and floor patterns. This led him to create an old-look dress, modernised by the influences of Hollywood star Audrey Hepburn and singer Amy Winehouse.

Luke will now create his design using fabric from the store's haberdashery department and it will then go on display in the women's wear section. He will also spend a day at the fashion design studio at John Lewis' head office and receive an Apple iPad.

Luke added: "I'm nervous about going to the studio, but it's a great opportunity. I'm also nervous about people not liking my design, but my family's support is amazing. The opportunity is also great for Barnet College."

Runner-up was Rosetti-Rae Rogers, 20, from Enfield, with Yida Tineo Cova, 17, from Colindale, north-west London, in third place. Each receives a John Lewis gift voucher for £25.

And to help them, they visited the company's heritage centre in Berkshire, where they

A YOUTH football club has captured the spirit of the World Cup by raising money for deprived children in east Africa.

Broomfield Youth, an amateur club for youngsters aged between seven and 16, has set itself the ambitious target of raising £40,000 to construct a 64-bed home for the Light in Africa orphanage in Moshi, Tanzania.

During an end-of-season event with players and parents on Friday, the club, based in Albury Ride, Cheshunt, raised £1,800. And yesterday Broomfield launched its biggest push – a raffle in which participants can win a shirt worn by Argentine football ace Lionel Messi, which was donated to the club by a Sky Sports journalist.

The money will be used to replace what are currently terrible living conditions for more than 60 orphans, most of whom suffer from illnesses such as HIV, as well as turning the surrounding farm land into sports pitches.

Daniel Moss, who founded Broomfield Youth in 2011, climbed Mount Kilimanjaro, in Tanzania, in July last year, and got in touch with Light in Africa, where he stayed for a week and became determined to raise money for the cause.

He told the Advertiser: "Our aim is to inspire, educate and empower our children – we want to be more than just a football club."

"When I was in Tanzania I donated our match kits from the season before. But I wanted to do more, so I took home an ambitious project of raising the money for a new home."

Altruistic: Lynn Elliot and Broomfield Youth founder Daniel Moss

The orphanage is run by Lynn Elliot, 69, who left her native Grimsby, in North Lincolnshire, for Mount Kilimanjaro in 2000 – a year after she visited Tanzania for the first time.

She became concerned with the fate of orphans and those who were ostracised because they were albinos, had HIV or were disabled. She currently runs nine orphanages in the country.

During a visit to the club last week, Ms

Elliot said: "Our priority is to feed the 259 children in our orphanages. We provide a thousand meals every day and I am so glad that the club is raising money for our new home."

Mr Moss will be travelling to Tanzania with a number of Broomfield coaches to start building work in August.

Raffle tickets cost £5 and can be bought via the Broomfield Youth Facebook page www.facebook.com/BroomfieldYouth

TrustFord going the extra mile

TrustFord is the new name for Dagenham Motors and all of their dealerships.

You'll see some changes at your local Dagenham Motors this summer. The signmakers and printers will be busy changing all their dealerships over to TrustFord.

But there won't be any change in the way they work. After all, they're still the same company at heart. So it's still the same great team offering you the same great service.

The TrustFord family

The local Dagenham Motors dealerships changed their name because they're part of a bigger group – the world's largest dedicated Ford dealer group in fact.

With dealerships all over the country, the network used to operate under a range of local brand names. Now, all their 65 sites across the UK are all called TrustFord. So whenever you see the TrustFord sign, you'll know it's part of the same nationwide family.

On hand to help

You can visit any of the 65 TrustFord dealerships for new and used cars, servicing and parts, or motability and commercial vehicles. Each location has specialists in each of the services they offer, so it's a one-stop-shop for all your driving needs.

What's more, they're wholly owned by Ford Motor Company, so no one knows your car like they do. This summer, they're inviting new customers in to offer up their technical expertise. They want to help drivers make the most of their vehicles – whatever the make or model.

So if you've just passed your test, you can ask them for a free New Driver Tutorial to learn about the basics of looking after your car and how to perform simple safety checks.

If you're more interested in the gadgets and features of your car, they're also offering complimentary Technology Tutorials. Whether you're trying to use the hands-free kit or work out the satellite navigation system, they're on hand to help.

All you have to do is book an appointment with your local dealership. With over 3,000 Ford-trained employees nationwide, all dedicated to giving the best possible customer service, you can trust them to go the extra mile.

Festival judges praise winners' essays and photos

THE winners of the Lamb Festival essay and photography competitions wowed judges with their language and illustrative skills.

The competition, based on the works of writers Charles and Mary Lamb, whose final resting place is in the graveyard at All Saints Church, in Church Street, Edmonton, saw entrants from schoolchildren and residents.

The winners were announced on the final day of the Lamb Festival earlier this month.

The essay competition was judged by Richard Morrison, chief music critic for The Times newspaper, and Veronica Finch, of The Charles Lamb Society – and Victoria Achola-Achur, of Latymer, in Haselbury Road Edmonton, won the secondary school category, Anjali Shelley, of Highfield, in Winchmore Hill, won the primary school category and Jennifer Wiltshire scooped the top prize in the open category.

Of her entry, the judges said: "A warm humour from the very first paragraph. There is not a line of this essay that I do not enjoy."

Rahman Chowdhury was named as the winner in the open category of the photography competition, based on the titles of William Shakespeare's plays, of which the Lambs produced an abridged version for children, and Kenisha Allen, of Aylward Academy, in Windmill Road, Edmonton, won the secondary school category.

The competition was judged by Avril Harris, a member of the Royal Photographic Society, and the Advertiser's chief photographer Anne-Marie Sanderson.

The judges said of Kenisha's image: "I love that it has been done in black and white as it makes this particular image so much more powerful."

The church is about to become an arts venue again when it hosts a special performance of Shakespeare's The Tempest on Thursday, June 26. The Moving Stories company is putting on a free London preview after rehearsing at the site.

Entry is free, but a donation to the church is suggested. For more information, email kitty@movingstories.org.uk

Hairdressers reveals how it continues to make cut after 30 years in business

Still top of the chops

By Paige Caldeira

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A HAIRDRESSERS which is named after a popular 1970s television drama is celebrating 30 years in business.

Sheila and Syd Manning opened Upstairs Downstairs Hairstyling, in Southbury Road, Enfield, in June 1984, naming the shop after the ITV series which followed the life of the wealthy Bellamy family and their servants downstairs.

The shop originally started on one floor and eventually turned into two, with a barber shop upstairs and a ladies' hair salon downstairs.

Sheila said: "The town needed the shop at the time. They needed a normal hairdressers rather than anything extravagant.

"We are not posh but we do a really good job for a reasonable price."

Syd added: "We have been through three recessions and have still managed to survive.

"We have been through good and bad times, but overall working here for 30 years has been very pleasant."

Upstairs Downstairs has a loyal customer base, not only locals but also people who have moved away from the area and who return for a haircut.

Sophie, a hairdresser who has been working for the business for a year, said: "Sheila and Syd have a good relationship with every client. They make them feel welcome – and Syd is even good with the youngsters who come and get their hair done."

Sheila and Syd have never advertised their shop as they believe recommendations get results and bring in customers.

Another hairdresser, Lesley, who has worked with the couple for 14 years, added: "Being around for 30 years is such a great achievement."

"Most salons don't last for very long, but because of Sheila and Syd being such great bosses they have made it a success."

A fantastic opera-tunity

By Paige Caldeira

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

PRIMARY school pupils across Enfield have been getting an introduction to opera.

The nine and ten-year-olds have been taking part in the six-week programme, run by the Pavilion Opera Educational Trust, which is being taught as part of the Key Stage 2 curriculum.

It aims to provide children with an appreciation and understanding of the classical arts through music, drama and history.

Geoffrey Simmonds, chairman of the Pavilion Opera Educational Trust, who has been running the programme in Enfield for about six years said: "It's an opportunity for children to engage in a classical art form.

"It combines everything and opens a window on a world they may not know. The skills they gain expand their horizons."

Galliard school, in Galliard Road, Edmonton, which has been taking part in the programme for the past three years, was one of the four host schools this year.

The Pavilion Opera Educational Trust performed Mozart's Così fan tutte at the school on Monday last week.

Pupils prepared for the performance by studying the story in depth, creating written character studies and making masks in class.

During the performance, the sopranos sat with the children while singing in Italian.

Headteacher Penny Sullivan said: "The children

Rapt: Galliard pupils watch a performance of Mozart's opera Così fan tutte hadn't seen the performance previously, so it was a great experience to see their learning come alive.

"They put in a lot of hard work and it was the best performance I have ever seen."

"It is an art form that is inaccessible to a child, but with preparation, it creates a learning opportunity."

The Pavilion Opera Educational Trust has now performed 326 shows to more than 45,000 children in 724 schools.

Difficult subject: Katherine Gill appears in Whisper Me Happy Ever After as schoolgirl Yasmin, whose behaviour and school work suffer as a result of her father's violent behaviour at home

Theatre company in funding call for counsellor to help children affected by domestic violence

AN INCLUSIVE theatre company has launched a fundraising effort for a project aimed at supporting children who face violence at home.

Face Front Theatre, based in Market Square, Edmonton Green, is aiming to tour schools with Whisper Me Happy Ever After.

It is a theatre programme for nine to 12-year-olds that seeks to raise awareness about the effects of domestic violence on the mental health of children who experience and witness it.

The project is based around interactive performances and workshops aimed at providing resources and training for teachers, while also encouraging pupils to come forward and talk about issues which they face at home.

Starting in October, Face Front aims to reach 5,400 young people in schools across Enfield, Haringey, Brent, Barnet and Bracknell, in Berkshire.

But the company needs to raise £9,500 to employ a counsellor to assist in the process of taking disclosures from children, liaising with the schools and directing children to where they can get support.

Natasha Graham, executive director at the theatre company, said: "We don't just want to go in and perform, but also have a counsellor with us at every school who the children can talk to.

"We aim to work with the child protection officers, and we want to do a follow-up session with children affected after a few weeks."

The project is in its third year.

During the previous tour, more than a hundred children disclosed issues of domestic violence, said Miss Graham, including in one school, where 17 children came forward after the performance.

Music festival hoping to draw even larger crowds

By Jack Wilkinson

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

PREPARATIONS are well under way for the forthcoming annual East Barnet Festival.

The free three-day event, which will run from July 4 to 6, will showcase the best of Barnet's arts and musical groups – as well as offering visitors a host of other attractions.

Barry Ainsworth, the festival's events producer, said: "We are all really looking forward to the festival and hope that great weather will be on offer."

Keen to capitalise on the success of last year's event, which saw more than 20,000 visitors descend on Oak Hill Park, in Church Hill Road, organisers are setting up a site with something for everyone.

As well as music, there will be a funfair, a gazebo with craft stalls, a dance tent and a licensed bar.

There will be 46 bands playing across the three days, including headline sets from The Silencerz, a group featuring Madness saxophonist Lee Thompson, and Soul Jax, Barnet's own soul music band.

A start-up stage designed to give up-and-coming bands the opportunity to perform in front of a large audience will also feature and a Theatre in the Park programme, which started this month and is running until middle of August, will showcase a series of productions during the festival.

This year's festival is raising funds for Noah's Ark Children's Hospice, in Victors Way, Barnet, which supports children with life-limiting illnesses across north London.

"Our aim, as a committee, is to raise as much money for local charities as possible," Mr Ainsworth added.

"The festival is free to the public, so we urge people to come and support both their local festival and a local charity."

Festival organisers are appealing for volunteers to help out for a couple of hours during the event.

For more details about volunteering, along with the festival schedule and the Theatre in the Park programme, visit www.east-barnet-festival.org.uk or call 01707 178 1745.

ALL-NEW FIAT 500 NOW AVAILABLE AT GLYN HOPKIN FIAT BUCKHURST HILL

- New TwinAir 105hp engine powers the 2014 Fiat 500
- New range-topping FIAT 500 Cult model also joins the range
- Innovative TFT digital instruments represent a segment first

The all-new Fiat 500 is now on sale at Glyn Hopkin Fiat Buckhurst Hill, introducing important new style, comfort and technological enhancements for 2014. A key new feature is the seven-inch TFT digital instrument display, which represents a segment-first. The display seamlessly integrates cutting-edge technology without disrupting the trademark aesthetics of the cabin. Standard on 500S and Cult models (and optional on Lounge versions), the central display – which contains a digital image of the car – can be configured to show various trip computer readouts, as well as detailed navigation, infotainment and communication functions.

The new TwinAir engine is another major development for the 2014 Fiat 500. The 105hp 0.9 TwinAir Turbo, the newest member of the award-winning TwinAir engine family, employs a high-efficiency turbocharger, Start & Stop fuel-saving system and the new MultiAir II intake valve control system which provide an enticing combination of power and efficiency.

Combined with a six-speed manual gearbox as standard, the new 0.9 TwinAir engine delivers 105hp at 5,500rpm and 107lb ft (145Nm) of torque at 2,000rpm in Sport mode (98hp and 89lb ft (120Nm) in 'eco' mode) which translates into 0 to 62mph time of just 10 seconds and a top speed of 117mph. Despite its lively performance, it is still capable of 67.3mpg on the official combined fuel economy cycle and its CO2 emissions are just 99g/km.

The popular entry-level engine in the 2014 Fiat 500 remains the 69hp 1.2-litre petrol (113g/km) while the TwinAir 85hp Turbo Petrol (92g/km) and 1.3 16v MultiJet 95hp turbo diesel (97g/km) comprise the rest of the engine range.

Paul Rumsby, Fiat Sales Manager for Glyn Hopkin, said: "The Fiat 500 is the marque's most popular model in the UK thanks to its striking looks, nimble handling and desirable city car dimensions. The all-new Fiat 500 offers fantastic affordability with excellent fuel economy and low road tax coupled with plenty of personalisation options, so customers can choose everything they want to make their car unique."

A high level of safety equipment comes as standard including ABS with EBD, seven airbags (including a driver's knee bag), ISOFIX attachments and daytime running lights (DRL). To reflect the 500's continued popularity amongst the fashionable and chic, the colour palette has also been revised for 2014 with the addition of a brilliant new 'Urban' white tri-coat, trendy 'Smooth Mint' and a vibrant 'Electronica Blue' available as options on certain trim levels. All models also benefit from new upholstery and colour options for 2014.

Pricing for the new Fiat 500 starts at £10,160 OTR for the 1.2 69hp 'Pop'. The luxurious Fiat 500 'Lounge' trim level is available with every engine in the range, with pricing from just £11,560 while the sporty Fiat 500S starts from £11,710 and £14,710 for the 500C convertible. The new top-of-the-range 'Cult' trim level offers a host of features, including the seven-inch TFT instrument panel, as standard. PAULINHO IS SET TO STAY AT TOTTENHAM

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

PAULINHO has insisted that he never considered leaving Tottenham Hotspur last season despite enduring a tough first 12 months at the club.

The Brazilian international midfielder, who is currently at the World Cup, arrived at White Hart Lane from Corinthians last summer but – after initially securing a regular place in the starting line-up – he became more of a peripheral figure once Tim Sherwood took charge.

This led to speculation that he would return to his home country, but Paulinho has revealed that this idea never crossed his mind.

“I was on the bench for a period, but I never considered returning to Brazil,” he said. “It’s complicated for a player when he goes to Europe, you have to be strong.

“I went through complicated situations in Lithuania and Poland and returned to Brazil. Of course I did talk with my agent, it’s normal when you are upset. But the talk of returning to Brazil never existed, it never crossed my mind.”

Meanwhile, new head coach Mauricio Pochettino has assured his Spurs players that they should not be worried about his innovative coaching methods.

The Argentinian, who has moved to Tottenham from Southampton, has a reputation for liking high-intensity training sessions, but he has told the squad that they should not fear this.

“The players don’t have to be afraid,” he said. “Our style is demanding – sometimes too much – but we use common sense. We demand a lot from them because that is our style.

“Our philosophy is suffer in training so you don’t suffer in the game. But the players don’t have to be afraid because we work with common sense all the time. We can only expect full commitment and a positive attitude.

“It’s an absolute honour to be a coach at such a big club. I am very happy to be here. We will try to give everything to make the fans proud of this football club.”

Paulinho wants to stay at Tottenham Hotspur

□ Former Tottenham midfielder David Bentley has retired from football at the age of just 29.

Bentley joined Spurs from Blackburn for £15million in 2008, but he struggled to make an impact at White Hart Lane and only featured 42 times for them in the league.

He was released by Tottenham last summer and, after failing to find another club, he has now decided to call time on a career which also saw him win seven caps for England.

“I’ve given up on football,” he said. “It’s over a year since I played my last game and I’ve taken the decision to take my life in a different direction. I felt like it was time to call it a day.

“I have no regrets. I’ve just fallen out of love with the game. I had a bit of a difficult time at Tottenham and it’s just one of those things. It’s a positive decision in my life and I’m happy.”

Hornsey prove too good for Hampstead

HORNSEY produced a fine all-round display to claim an eight-wicket win at home to Hampstead in the top flight of the Middlesex County Cricket League on Saturday.

Martin Tucker (4-46) played a key role in reducing Hampstead to 70-5 before an outstanding innings from Liam Hughes (70) brought the visitors back into contention as they made it up to 211.

James Bull (39) then helped Hornsey to make a good start to their reply before they were guided to victory by an unbroken stand of 146 for the third wicket between Adam Rossington (70 not out) and Michael Philipson (66 not out) as they eased to 212-2.

However, North Middlesex

remain rooted to the foot of the table despite managing to secure a losing draw from their trip to Stanmore.

Evan Flowers (55) and Will Nicol (44) made the key contributions as the visitors amassed 198 batting first, with Abishek Kulkarni taking 5-46.

Stanmore slipped to 38-4 in reply, but Steve Mehra (51) and Jimi Chialoufous (54 not out) came to their rescue as they reached 143-5 – with their faster scoring rate ensuring that it was the hosts who picked up the four points.

Meanwhile, Highgate slipped to second in the Division Three table after having to settle for a winning draw at Ickenham.

Edward Binns (50) and Jake Sharland (46) led the way as Highgate raced to 235-7 before declaring.

Ross Berti (75) got Ickenham’s reply off to a good start and Greg Knowles chipped in with 40 not out, but wickets fell regularly and they were left hanging on for a draw at 198-9. Craig Gourlay (4-67) was the pick of the bowlers.

Division Three action also saw North London ease to a five-wicket win at Harrow Town, making it to 154-5 after dismissing their hosts for 150.

Hornsey go to Teddington on Saturday, while North Middlesex entertain Brondesbury, North London host South Hampstead and Highgate are at home to Wembley.

Skolars record a long-awaited victory

THE London Skolars got back to winning ways in fine style by securing a 52-28 victory at Oxford in rugby league’s Kingstone Press Championship One on Sunday.

The Skolars went into the match on the back of five successive defeats – including a humbling 46-18 reversal at home to basement side South Wales Scorpions the previous week.

Determined to bounce back from this, the visitors struck first through a Mike Bishay try, but Oxford went ahead when Alex Thompson touched down and Tommy Connick converted.

Dave Williams put the Skolars back in front by scoring a try which Courtney Davies converted, and they extended their advantage when James Duckworth crossed the line in the corner.

A superb individual try from Connick and subsequent conversion brought Oxford back to within two points, but the visitors finished the first half strongly as a Denny Solomana try and a conversion and penalty from Davies left them 22-12 ahead.

The second half began with Sam Blaney touching down for Oxford, but Bishay cancelled this out by scoring his second try of the match.

However, the hosts got themselves right back into the match as Sean Morris outpaced the Skolars’ defence to score a converted try before Jack Briggs capitalised on a knock-on to cross the line and level the scores.

These proved to be Oxford’s last points though as the Skolars ran riot in the closing stages to cruise to victory.

Solomana touched down twice more to complete his hat-trick, while Lamont Bryan and Williams also crossed the line to seal an ultimately emphatic triumph.

The London Skolars’ next match is against Gateshead Thunder at their temporary home of the Queen Elizabeth Stadium in Enfield on June 29.
